HOURR-A CONTRAST TO TAMMANY RX TEANAGANCE—THE PLAIN AND SHABB' FURNISHING — ONLY SIX SLEEPING ROOMS IN THE HOUSE. Correspondence of the New York Standard.

Washington, August 23.
The "White House." What visions of luxury and more than Republican splendor has not this name conjured up to the our named the name conjured up to the imagination of the quiet plodding farmer, the industrious, frugal mechanic, and the well-to-do tradesman, who shake the head in orainous silence as they listen to repairs and refitting under the direction of General Eabtook, our new Superintendent of Public Buildings, preparatory to re-occupancy upon the return of General Grant and his family.

SERTCH OF THE EXECUTIVE MANSION. This building is the model of an Engtich et 'leman's country house or man-sion, and was designed by Sir Christopher With the many respects it is most charm-ingly at an ed; the wide, spacious halls running the whole length of the entire building, gives the most delightful circu-lation of six and impressed one with a lation of air, and impresses one with a sense of freedom and unrestraint quite delightful in those days of economized space and narrow passages. The first floor consists of the red, blue and green rooms, the spanous east room, the State and family dining rooms. The second floor accommodates the Scoretaries and their clerks, the library, the room devoted to Cabinet meetings, and the living rooms of the President's family.

THE PRESIDENT'S PRIVAR QUARTERS There seems to be a want of generosity ing the private relations and domestic economy of this establishment that is difeconomy of this escaphism cut that is the figult to account for. Six sleeping rooms make up the compliment of its accommodations, and these must supply the family and guests, who at all times must be limited in numbers and unselfish in appropriation. A Christian charity would suggest that in selecting a candida e for Pres-dential hopors care should be taken to consider the size of his family, otherwise rest inconvenience would be experienced n providing them with quarters.

THE COUNCIL CHAMBER-ITS ASSOCIA

The room devoted to the meeting of th ing, fronting the grounds, which are hand-somely laid out, and from whose windows one gets the finest view in Washington. The arrangement of the table and ohars, so suggestive of deliberation, led me back a lew years to the solemn scenes and top-ics discussed during the war around this same table. The anxious days and painful nights of these dark years arose before my vision, and I could almost seen the rugged features and quaint form of the great man who sat at the helm of State ive manaion. and directed its course through the waters of that troubled and stormy sea. The In due time we arrived at the bridegroom's house, where men were

A SHABBY PROVISION—THE LIBRARY,

Chamber, is one of the finest rooms in the building; but the utter dearth and poverty of its turnishing is a matter of surprise and poinful humiliation. One would suppose that the President's library would be turnished with all the standard works in home and foreign literary which seems to see the women with their places on the ground stepping about over them with turnished with all the standard works in home and foreign literature, which seem properly to belong to the study of statesman, or might be required for reference. Here we should expect to see all the leading periodicals and newspapers of the world; instead of this we find a few volumes of standard works of poetry and prose, encyclopedias, Congressional Globes, and musty "Pub. Does." Blue Books, Army and Navy Registers, etc.

The entrance to the bridgeroom's room was closed by a surfain.

I had just time to notice all this when we heard loud screams of "ai, ai, ai," and in came four men currying the box containing the bridgeroom's room was closed by a surfain.

When we consider the salary attached to the office, the demands to be met from it, the fact that a majority of our Presidents have been men of innited means, a contingency likely to occur with any one elected to the office, would it not be the part of an enlightened generosity to supply him with those things which the situation would seem to demand?

THE PRIVATE PARLOR.

tuously retired; all the women having hidden their faces when the men entered we tried in vain to see into the men entered we tried in vain to see into the room and catch a glimpse of the bride. An old slave beld up her blanket before the door and would not allow any one to look in. Presently a man name in and carried out the complete which her. Y —— says was immediately hoisted on to the roof and left there. Then the men outside commenced firing into the house; and we finding no one but the bridegeom could not allow the price of the bride. An old slave beld up her blanket before the door and would not allow any one to look in.

The inruiture in this room is fresh and beautiful, having just undergone the revemping process, and newly covered with an exquisite shade of light blue satin wamping process, and newly covered with an exquisite shade of light blue sating broastelle, with a pattern of delicate boundates of flowers running through it. In this room hangs, the only portrait of a "Mrs. President," left as mement of the charms and beauty that have graced these halls. Mrs. John Tyler's life-size portrait expeaks sixquently upon the audject, and its great beauty led me to speculate upon this remissness of Congress, not to say ungalantry, in not making appropriations for this purpose when remembering to do so for the Presidents themselves. Think of the pleasure it would be to see the portraits of all the wives and daughters of our Presidents. What an interesting col our Presidents. What an interesting col-lection would such a gallery prove. Con-

Let the Patriot how, the Sun gibber and the World declare that the Sup grover and the World declare that the imperial purple is at least assumed in the President's bed chamber. The marble-top centre-table is the only piece of furni-ture that matches the bedstead; the balance is made up of oiled walnut, varnieused states and cakes. We had to present walnut and mulacyany; a medicy quite annoying to that sense of fi ness which naturally belongs to persons of refined and cultiful to the correction of the correction

The state dining room is large and long, old fashioned carving tables, which must have served for "Papa George," in the early history of the nation, and ought to be removed to the Patent Office and placed with the china and household furniture belonging to the Washington family on exhibition there. There is no side-board nor mirrors or wassa nictures or any niture belonging to the Washington family on exhibition there. There is no side board, nor mirrors or vases, pictures, or any object to fold one's eyes linger pleasantly around the place. The visude ought to be served in the highest style of the culinary art, to make amends in part for the barren surroundings.

In various ways the General has showed his public spirit. Among the reforms he would like to carry out would be to remove the heavy iron railings of the parklike queres and reservations which adorn the older part of Washington, and in substitution therefor put pillars and chains, leaving them free to all comers at all of the lost reservations in growing portions of the city as children's parks and this spirit may be trusted to use wisely and well the most liberal appropriation and most industrious class of people of any in the United States; and there is one trait of character for which they deserve particular credit, that is, the care they take great pride in sending up their children. They take great pride in sending them to school and to divine worship on Sundays and holy-days of obligation. Again, they do so allow their children to run around the
